The Gunslinging Housewife (www.gunslinginghousewife.com) is a new web publication based out of Reno, NV geared towards the average woman. It is written by a NRA Certified Instructor who is a wife, mother, and lover of guns. The target audience of The Gunslinging Housewife are women who are not in law enforcement, the military, or readers of other gun publications. They are women between the ages of 18 and 80 who read magazines geared for women from fashion, parenting, cooking, home and garden, but they also shoot guns. The Gunslinging Housewife combines the likes of gun magazines with women's magazines to create a fun site where women can be informed on products, get reviews on the functionality of various guns by a regular woman and who feel more compelled to take the word of the "average woman" into consideration when making purchases. The average woman is a consumer none the less and should not be excluded when taking sales into consideration. The Gunslinging Housewife offers a variety of advertising opportunities for your company at reasonable rates.

All ad spaces are 200x250 pixels and display on the sides of each page. Ads can be built either by your own design departments, or can be created by The Gunslinging Housewife. They display at random with each page refresh and will stay with the pages for the month they run when the stories get archived.
